OFF-DUTY ACTIVITIES

If I served for less than 130 days during the last year or serve as an intermittent employee, are there any restrictions on my political activities when I am off duty and when I am not on Government premises?

- No. Only on-duty conduct and conduct while on Government premises are restricted for employees who serve 130 days or fewer in a 365-day period or who serve on an intermittent basis with an irregular schedule. When off duty and when not on U.S. Government property, you may fully participate in partisan political activities, including running for office and fund-raising.

What other limits apply when at work?

- You may not:
  - use Government property for political purposes, including use of Government equipment to send political e-mails;
  - use your Government position or influence to interfere with an election or to coerce any person to participate in a political activity;
  - wear a political button on duty;
  - display a partisan banner, sign, sticker, or poster in a Federal office; or
  - consider political affiliation or political activity with regard to a personnel action (except with regard to Schedule C employees and non-career SES appointments).
