

Are there any rules barring me from looking for a job or limiting who I can contact about a future job?

- No. You are free to look for a job at anytime with anyone.

Are there any restrictions on me because I am in a job search?

- Yes. Once you start to look for non-Federal employment you must stop working on anything that will affect a prospective employer—meaning anyone you have contacted, or who has contacted you, about a job.

When does this disqualification requirement begin?

- Disqualification begins as soon as:

- you contact the prospective employer about a possible job, such as by sending a résumé;
- a prospective employer contacts you about a possible job; or
- you learn from a headhunter or other agent about a contact with the prospective employer on your behalf.

When does the disqualification end?

- Disqualification ends when:

- either you or the prospective employer notifies the other of the end of employment discussions or
- two months have elapsed without response after you sent an application.

Do I need to notify my supervisor or anyone else about a job search?

- Yes, in some cases. You must provide notice of employment contacts:

- to an ethics official within 3 days of any communication with a prospective employer, in writing with a disqualification notice, if you are an SES member, political appointee, or otherwise required to file a public financial disclosure report (OGE Form 278), in which case you can use the Notice of Employment Negotiations form found on the Ethics Law and Programs Division webpage at www.commerce.gov/ethics;
- to your supervisor if the disqualification requirement prevents you from working on an assigned task;
- to a supervisor or ethics official if you receive a travel payment to attend a job interview from a prospective employer; or
- to a supervisor and an ethics official if you are a procurement official for a contract of $100,000 or more and has contacted or been contacted by a bidder on the contract (even if neither of you pursues employment discussions).